DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8/26/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applicant has traversed the restriction between groups I and groups III. The applicant argues that the two inventions are inextricably intertwined and would require the same search.

At this moment in prosecution history the claims of group I and group III are not dependent upon each other and are thus not intertwined. Furthermore, the method claims contain method features not contained in the composition claims. For example none of the composition claims are directed to operating temperatures, time parameters, etc. Thus the claims are neither intertwined nor are they commensurate in scope. As such, the original restriction stands.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Greene (US 4,444,601).

Greene teaches powdered film forming composition which contain a dissolved fluoride crystal for example potassium titanium fluoride. The fluoride crystals are dissolved in a solution by using a process such as described in example-1. In this example, boric acid is mixed with nitric acid to form a solution that dissolves a potassium titanium fluoride crystal. The dissolved crystal solution is then used to plate a zinc plate to offer corrosion protection.

Although this process does not involve optical element, this process does involve dissolution of fluoride crystal using nitric and boric acid. As such, the instant claim limitations have been met.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kindler (US 4,898,777).

Kindler teaches high strength fluoride glass fibers (see title). Kindler teaches a novel solution of boric acid and nitric acid to etch the fluoride glass (see abstract).
